Have you heard of the English city of York? It's one of the most __FAME__ cities in the UK.

The Romans started the city in 71 AD. It quickly grew to become __CENTRE__ to the Roman Empire as a military base.

In 211, Constantine I was crowned Emperor in York. This was __REAL__ unusual and special, as Emperors were almost always crowned in Rome.

The historical __IMPORTANT__ of York is also symbolised by the Minster, one of the largest churches in the world.

The city burnt down in a __DISASTER__ fire in 1137, but managed to recover to become a centre of trade and commerce by the 1500s.

Fire struck again in 1984 and the Minster was badly damaged, but __FORTUNE__, like the city itself, the Minster recovered its former glory to stand tall once again.
